

Your First Social

Planning your event

It is really important to get to know your team before you climb. As the Team Leader we would like you to hold social and fundraising events throughout the year to keep up morale and encourage individual fundraising.

Your first social is the chance for you to let your team know who you are and why you have decided to climb for Dig Deep.

First you need to decide where you will hold your social. Make sure that it is easily accessible for your team members and has the equipment to hold a presentation. We have made a presentation with information for you to pass on to your team with some ice breakers!

We suggest trying to organise your event early on to give your team enough notice. You may also need to book a room to hold the event it is better to do this sooner rather than later.

Secondly, we will be posting out your team's resources to you. We would like you to use this social to hand out t-shirts, collection tins and posters. It is also a good excuse to get people together.

Thirdly, this is the first chance your team of getting to meet each other. It should be relaxed and fun, so don't worry about being too formal. The presentation is a guideline of how we would structure a social but if you have an idea of how you would like to do it, be as creative as you would like to!

Have fun and get to know your team! Share some pictures on social media too so people can follow the journey of your team throughout the year.
